

How much does a fiber optic KVM typically cost in Somalia

AI Overview

Fiber optic KVM transmission in Somalia is likely to cost between $1,500 and $5,000 per link, depending on distance, equipment quality, and installation complexity.

Cost Overview

Fiber optic KVM (Keyboard, Video, Mouse) extenders allow remote management of servers and IT equipment over long distances using fiber optic cables. Globally, the cost of a single KVM over fiber link typically ranges from $1,500 to $5,000, depending on factors such as:

- Distance supported: Short-range (up to 300 meters) is cheaper, while long-range (up to 10 km or more) increases cost.
- Resolution and bandwidth: Higher video resolutions (4K or above) and faster refresh rates increase equipment price.
- Redundancy and features: Dual-fiber links, multi-user access, and secure transmission add to the cost.

Somalia Market Context

Somalia's fiber optic infrastructure is still developing and fragmented, with urban hubs like Mogadishu having better connectivity than rural areas. The government is implementing a unified fiber optic deployment policy to reduce costs and expand coverage. While Somalia is connected to multiple international submarine cables, d...
