Overview

The Gaza war began on October 7, 2023 following a series of coordinated armed attacks carried out by Hamas and several other Palestinian militant groups in southern Israel. Proposals to deploy a multinational peacekeeping force in the Gaza Strip was initially proposed by former British prime minister Tony Blair in a draft peace plan developed in July 2025 which Blair discussed with US president.

Overview The International Stabilization Force (ISF) is a UN-mandated multinational force outlined. Under the proposal, a multinational peacekeeping force, and locally recruited civilian police force would be deployed into the Gaza Strip accompanied by a withdrawal of the IDF from the territory. Following the first phase of the Gaza war peace plan coming into effect on 10 October 2025, a multinational joint task force is to be established to monitor the ceasefire. On 15 Octo. Several countries have publicly committed troops to the ISF: • - has committed a substantial contingent and will serve as deputy commander of the force. • - pledged mil. Hamas, which continues to control roughly half of the Gaza Strip, has rejected any imposed international guardianship plan. Reportedly, many countries want to ensure their troops would be peacekeeping with the consent.
