

Price of Corrosion-Resistant Optical Cable

AI Overview

Corrosion-resistant optical cables typically cost between $1 and $6 per foot, depending on fiber type, strand count, and environmental protection features.

Pricing Overview

The cost of corrosion-resistant optical cables varies widely based on cable type, fiber count, and construction. Standard fiber-optic cable materials generally range from $1 to $6 per linear foot, with higher prices for cables designed for harsh environments, such as armored or marine-grade cables . Wholesale bulk purchases can be lower, around $0.09 to $1.52 per foot, while retail prices for pre-terminated or specialized cables are higher .

Factors Affecting Price

- Fiber Type and Count:
 - Single-mode fiber is usually less expensive per foot than multimode fiber.
 - Higher strand counts increase costs proportionally; for example, a 12-strand cable may cost around $0.50 per foot, while a 24-strand cable can reach $1 per foot .
- Cable Construction and Rating:
 - Armored cables with stainless steel or anti-corrosive coatings for harsh environments cost more, typically $0.50 to $5 per foot .
 - Indoor riser-rated cables are cheaper than plenum-rated or fire-retardant cables.
 - Marine or underwater cables with moisture-blocking compounds and HDPE sheaths are specialized and priced higher
