

Price of cable tray workshop display board

AI Overview

The cost of a cable tray workshop display board depends on the type and size of trays and fittings, typically ranging from $15 to $50 per tray section or coupler, with additional costs for assembly and display setup.

Pricing Overview

- Ladder-type cable trays (hot-dip galvanized, standard 2.4 meters) are commonly used for workshop displays. Prices vary depending on height and material, generally starting around $15-$30 per tray section for smaller sizes and increasing for larger or stainless steel trays .
- Coupler plates and hardware for connecting trays cost approximately $16-$30 per piece, depending on tray height and type .
- Wire mesh or basket trays are lighter and more affordable, often used for demonstration of small cables or data center setups. These are typically cheaper than solid or ladder trays and easier to handle for display purposes .

Factors Affecting Cost

- Material: Stainless steel trays are more expensive than galvanized steel or aluminum but offer better corrosion resistance and durability .
- Tray Type: Ladder trays are heavier and more robust, perforated trays offer moderate protection, and channel trays are compact for small cable runs .
- Display Size: The total number of tray sections and fittings required for a workshop display board will directly impact the overall cost....
